County Seeks 1,183 Barrels Of Free Flour

Additional Requisition Is Sought for Use in Next 90 Days

Poor commissioners of towns, cities and villages of Outagamie-co, meeting at the courthouse last night, decided to ask the federal government for 1,183 barrels of free flour to use in relief work in the county during the next 90 days. This is the third request filed by the county for flour and brings the total number of barrels which were sought to 2,750. In two previous shipments the county received 1,567 barrels.

The flour is issued by the government through the American Red Cross. Officials of the Outagamie-co chapter of that organization attended the meeting last night. Anton Jansen, chairman of the county board, committee on poor relief, and John E. Hantschel, county clerk, also serve on the committee that has charge of the distribution of the flour.

The county already has received five carloads of flour. The first shipment, ordered about six months ago, totaled 768 barrels and was sent in two carloads. The second shipment, ordered about three months ago, totaled 809 barrels and it was received in three carloads.

Two towns were not represented at the meeting last night, Ellington and Seymour, and before the requisition for the flour is sent out Hantschel will determine from these districts the amount of flour they will require.

The largest amount of flour, 500 barrels, is asked by the city of Appleton, while the smallest amount, five barrels, is asked by the towns of Osborn and Kaukauna. Not a single one of the districts in the county is not making a request for free flour.

Following are the districts and the amount of flour asked by each: Towns of Black Creek, 10; Bovina, 12; Buchanan, 20; Center, 14; Cicero, 26; Dale, 10; Deer Creek, 25; Freedom, 14; Grand Chute, 45; Greenfield, 10; Hortonville, 13; Kaukauna, 5; Liberty, 25; Maine, 25; Maple Creek, 25; Oneida, 75; Osborn, 5; and Vandenberg, 10.

Cities of Appleton, 500; Kaukauna 85; Seymour, 20; New London, being taken care of through Waupaca-co.

Villages of Bear Creek, 18; Black Creek, 22; Combined Locks, 25; Hortonville, 10; Kimberly, 50; Little Chute, 60; and Silocon, 28.

May Shut Off Stop Lights for Winter

Committee Considers Proposal in Program For Economy

The possibility of shutting down the stop-and-go traffic lights in the city after school hours for the remainder of the winter is being considered by the street lighting committee. It is possible that a resolution recommending this will be presented to the council Wednesday evening.

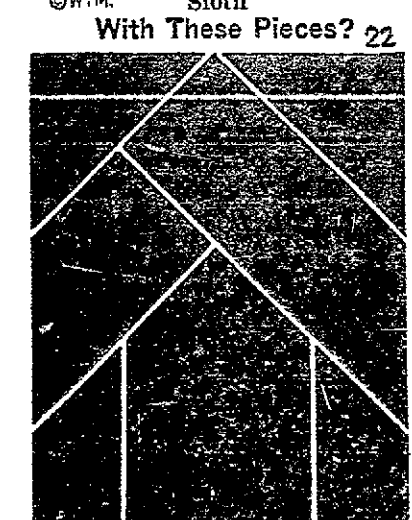

The operation of the traffic lights during the past year cost the city about $1,400. It is felt that during the winter months, when traffic is light, a considerable part of this could be saved with no particular risk to either pedestrians or motorists. Originally shutting down the system entirely was considered, but the need for the protection of schoolchildren crossing College-ave at State and Walnut-sts and Wisconsin-ave at Oneida-st, apparently will make it necessary to keep the lights in operation until about 4:30.

$14,000 in Taxes Collected by City

First Two Days Last Year Netted Treasurer $22,700

A total of $14,042 was collected in taxes by Joseph A. Kox, city treasurer, during the first two days of the tax collection period. Last year the first two days netted $22,748.

However, if the $15,000 in citizen-loans already in the hands of the treasurer is included in the first day's total, the results this year are over $8,000 better than in 1931.

The loans made to the city during the past few months can be redeemed any time from now until March 1. A few have already collected the principal and interest and applied the money on their taxes.

The treasurer's office is open each day from 9 o'clock in the morning until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and if necessary later on the office will be kept open between 7 and 8 o'clock on certain evenings.

COMMITTEE TO MEET

The finance committee will meet Friday afternoon. Bills to be presented at the meeting of the common council next week will be approved.

Bronchial Troubles Need Creomulsion

Bronchial troubles may lead to something serious. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

Chilton Man May Be Named Speaker Of State Assembly

Jerome Fox Is One of Two Outstanding Candidates for Post

Assemblyman Jerome Fox of Chilton is one of the two Democratic solons who are being considered for the post of speaker of the assembly, according to Madison political writers who claim the race is definitely between Fox and Cornelius Young of Milwaukee. The political writers claim that the Fox-Young forces have agreed to combine on the candidate showing the greatest strength in the early balloting. One writer says:

"This information indicates that the Democratic leadership has decided they do not desire that Neil McEachrin of the Forest-Florence-Oriskany district receive the speakership. Since the word has gone out that either Young or Fox is sure to be the speaker, there has been considerably less bitterness between the two camps."

"The indications are that Fox and Young have had a quiet little talk and decided that as one of them is certain to be speaker and the other the Democratic floor leader in the assembly, a warm contest between them would be out of place."

Strength in State "Although Young starts in with 17 of the Democratic votes who hail from Milwaukee county pledged to him and this is rather a handicap to Fox, the friends of the Calumet-co assemblyman declare that of the 44 Democratic assemblymen who come from the districts outside of Milwaukee-co they believe that fully 30 and possibly 35 will support Fox on the first ballot and will give him such a lead, especially if three candidates are in the race, that his selection by the Democratic caucus is assured.

"If Fox should have 35 votes on the first ballot, he would, of course, obtain the nomination at once as there are only 61 Democratic assemblymen and he would receive a majority on an initial vote for the speakership nomination. Even 30 votes would leave him only one shy of the necessary majority and place him so high in the race that his defeat would be almost impossible. Friends of Young are quite emphatic in their declaration that Fox will not have any such support outside of Milwaukee county as his friends are now saying. It is noticeable, however, that the supporters of Young are by no means as certain of his election as they were last week."

Consider Matter "Unquestionably, Governor-elect Schedemann and his close advisors have had considerable to do in bringing about a better feeling between Fox and Young and in placing the speakership contest in a status where there will be no bitterness over the results."

"The Democratic leaders feel they will have a hard enough task before them in the legislative session faced as it is with so many serious questions without having to smooth out any ill feelings over a speakership contest. They are undoubtedly much rejoiced that they have placed the contest in a status of a tennis match rather than a big 10 conference football game."

"The talk is that either Fox or Young after being elected speaker, will at once arrange the committee list and that it is more than likely the assembly committees may be announced before the legislature

Sturgeon Season On Winnebago to Start on Jan. 5

Predict Many Fishermen Will Try Hand at Spearing This Year

The 1933 sturgeon fishing season will open Thursday, Jan. 5 and will extend to March 1, according to Louis Jeske, local game warden. Lake Winnebago is the only body of water in this vicinity on which sturgeon fishing will be permitted. Only spear fishing is legal.

Sturgeon tags must be purchased by persons who want to fish for which convenes on Jan. 11 adjourns for its first week-end recess.

"Generally the assembly committees are not made up before the second week of the session. If they can be announced during the first week of the legislature it will permit of hearings on some purely formal bills during the second week of the legislature."

"The inference that the committees will be promptly announced indicates there will be no reprisals as to committee appointments between the Fox and Young camps."

sturgeon, the warden stated. These tags may be obtained at a cost of 5 cents each from the local wardens' office. Each applicant will be limited to five tags for the season.

Must Be Locked On

The sturgeon tags must be attached and locked at once, at the time when the fish are taken from the water, it was stated by the wardens.

It was indicated today that there may be quite a number of sturgeon fishermen inasmuch as Lake Winnebago is the only place where sturgeon fishing may be done, and also due to the fact that much ice fishing is being done this year.

Wardens state that more fishing shanties have been dotted the lake than ever before. Many men, unemployed at the present time, are engaged in fishing to stock their family larders.

City Protests Move To Close Income Office

Commission Promises Formal Hearing if Injunction Is Dissolved

A committee representing the city of Appleton and Outagamie county, which appeared before the Wisconsin Tax commission at Madison yesterday to protest the commis- sion's order to close the office of the assessor of incomes at the court- house here, was told that if the county would dissolve the injunc- tion obtained yesterday the com- mission would come to Appleton and hold a formal hearing on the matter.

Members of the committee which appeared before the commission were: John W. Goodland, Jr., may- or; Anton Jensen, Little Chute, ac- ting chairman of the county board; F. P. Young, chairman of the coun- ty board building and grounds com- mittee; Kenneth G. Corbett, secre- tary of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce; and E. A. Dettman.

Monday Leo J. Toonen, who is in charge of the assessor's office here, received official word that the Appleton office was to be closed and the records moved to Mani- towishaug. Both Outagamie and Brown- county were to be added to the Mani- towishaug district, and the offices in Appleton and Green Bay were to be closed. This was being done in the interests of efficiency and econ- omy, according to Charles D. Rosa, chairman of the commission.

Met By Injunctions
When agents of the commission appeared Tuesday at Green Bay and Appleton they were met by in- junctions restraining them from taking the records. The injunctions were obtained on the grounds that records and equipment in the of- fices in Green Bay and Brown-co- were the property of the counties and they could not be moved by the state. Rosa yesterday branded the injunctions as nothing more than futile efforts which will mere- ly delay the commission's plans for consolidation. He said the consoli- dated order was one of a num- ber which the commission planned in an effort to reduce the ex- penses and increase efficiency.

Members of the committee which appeared before the commission at Madison yesterday argued that if the new district was to be formed Appleton would be a logical place for its headquarters, and Young said before the commission a plan whereby sufficient room for the headquarters could be made avail- able at the courthouse here.

Rosa told the committee that if the injunction, which is to be argued in municipal court on Jan. 7, was dissolved the commission would come here and inspect the headquarters proposed by Young and hold a formal hearing. The committee decided to return to Ap- pleton and meet here before it made a decision.

became heavy and the state board of deposits, through the authority vested in it, increased the premium rates from 1 to 2 per cent last October.

Object to Delays
Considerable criticism has been directed at the state government by some municipalities and other local governments whose funds be- came tied up in closed or mora- tory banks. The principal com- plaint has been that the state does not settle promptly.

In some circles of the Democratic party, which takes over the admin- istration of state affairs on Jan. 2, has come a demand for repeal of this public deposits law.

The amount of outstanding claims against the state fund has been un- officially reported at anywhere from $2,000,000 to $8,000,000. Two officials under the retiring LaFollette administration during which the law was enacted said to- day that it is not possible to esti- mate what amount of actual out- standing claims the state fund will have to pay because the banks, through liquidation or settlement, will pay an undetermined portion of the losses.

"We have prepared for public in- formation a statement of the claims for which the state has settled to date," said Secretary of State Theo- dore Damman, a member of the board of deposits. "Beyond that we cannot go."

Thomas M. Duncan, executive secretary to Governor LaFollette, said that all claims would be paid as soon as they are checked and audited.

"It usually takes about three months to audit a claim," he said. "Some municipalities expect to be paid off the day after their claims are presented. Of course, that can- not be done."

Aviation School Created by U. S. On Texas Plain

Army's City of 3,000 Residents Is Built in Ring
Of Hangars

San Antonio, Tex.—If "the next war" is going to be fought in the air—as a lot of military experts think it will be—Uncle Sam's army won't be caught napping.

On a 2300-acre tract of Texas prairie land 16 miles southeast of San Antonio, the nation's "West Point of the Air" has arisen—a thriving new city of 500 spick-and-span buildings where young eagles in army khaki will be hatched, ultimately at the rate of more than 3000 a year, with plenty of room for expansion in case of emergency.

T's Randolph Field, the world's largest and finest aviation training school, which is just beginning to operate on regular scale. It cost $10,000,000—which is less than the cost of one navy cruiser—but ulti- mately from $30,000,000 to $40,000,000 will be spent there.

Two hundred fighting planes could take off in formation, from its 1900 acres of landing fields, laid out in streets like the spokes of a giant wheel.

On the half-acre floor in each of its 18 great hangars, whole pur- suit squadrons of 25 fast sky fight- ers or a whole bombardment squad- ron of seven gigantic birds of war can be housed.

Life among the cadets at the "West Point of the Air" is pretty much like that at any other big school, but the entrance require- ments are far more severe. An ap- plicant must be from 21 to 21 years of age, unmarried, in excellent phys- ical condition and, preferably, a college graduate.

Face More Tests
But even after you're in, the fun has only begun. You don't stay un- less you can continue to pass a whole lot more tests. Officers spin you around in a machine that re- volves in various directions, to test your sense of equilibrium; you must operate levers that control flashing lights to test your ability for phys- ical and mental co-ordination; you must not show "ground fright" in landing.

The result of it all is that nearly half the members of every class are "washed out" and sent home be- fore the first four months of pri- mary training is completed.

Those who stay get $75 a month, living quarters in excellent dormi- tories, and the chance to win their wings as army flyers.

Three new classes are started each year. The school comprises about 300 officers, 500 flying cadets, 2000 enlisted men. Including fami- lies of some of the men now there, the total population of Randolph Field runs above 3000 persons.

The field is the last word in air- port design. Except for the tower of the great white administration building, nothing rears itself into the sky to menace the safety—of fledgling flyers—there isn't a water tower, a windmill, an oil derrick, or a transmission line for miles around.

The various courses include ev- erything that army flyers are sup- posed to know—from aerial combat with peppering machine guns to the blasting of huge areas with high- explosive bombs dropped from aloft, a feature of the latter "sci- ence" being that it is taught by means of huge maps painted on canvas curtains which move across the floor to simulate the terrain of the enemy country.

Discuss Plans For Bridge Meet

Mrs. Emma Hoaglin, Oshkosh Teacher, in Charge
Of Arrangements

Plans for the statewide contract bridge tournament to be conducted here on Saturday afternoon, Jan. 7, were discussed at a meeting yester- day afternoon of the local com- mittee with Mrs. Emma Hoaglin, Oshkosh, who had charge of ar- rangements for the tournament play. The local committee is head- ed by Dr. George E. Massart, pres- ident of the Appleton Contract Bridge association, and David Smith.

The tournament is being spon- sored by the Appleton association and the Post-Crescent and entries can be made with the bridge editor of the Post-Crescent. The en- try fee is $2 per team of two, and all entry fees, above expenses, are to be divided as prizes.

It is planned to hold the tourna- ment at the Elk club. Many en- tries are being received from Ap- pleton and other cities.

Below is a coupon which can be used to register in the tourna- ment.

Faces Charges

A year ago Frank P. Parish, above, youthful oil pipe-line pro- moter, was buying the former pre- sidential yacht Mayflower and or- dering her rebuilt on lavish lines. Today he is under indictment in New York on charges of grand lar- ceny of $127,000 in securities. Parish is also under federal indictment in Chicago on charges of using the mails to defraud. Parish denies both charges.

Announce Plans For "Y" Program

Association Will Observe
"Open House" on Monday, Jan. 2

Partial plans for the annual New Year's open house program of the Y. M. C. A. have been completed, according to W. S. Ryan, physical director, who is arranging the gym- nasium and pool programs.

The gymnasium program will show a gymnasium drill by mem- bers of the Friendly Indian club of the boys' department. It will be followed by an advanced drill in gymnastics, which will feature James Neller, a student at the uni- versity of Wisconsin. Another drill will feature several Appleton boys. Following the gymnasium drills there will be a basketball game be- tween the R. and S. Shoe team and a squad the Appleton boys have in- vited here.

The swimming pool exhibit will include several specialty races and stunts by boys. There also will be a mixed swim for men and women. An orchestral program has been arranged for in the lobby of the "Y" and all game and sports facili- ties will be open to members and guests.

Snow Is Forecast By the Weatherman

Snow, but not much change in temperature, is the weather forecast for Appleton and vicinity for the next 24 hours. However, the winds will remain in the south and south- west, but will be moderate. Skies tonight and Friday will be unset- tled and rain is possible in some sections. Upper Michigan will get more snow and there will be snow or rain in Wisconsin, especially in the west and north portions.

The high temperature yesterday was 38 degrees and the low early this morning was 17 degrees.

South America Is Boom Continent of Future, Prof Says

Toronto, Ont.—(P)—Dr. Herbert E. Bolton, professor of history at the University of California and re- tiring president of the American Historical association, told the as- sociation last night South America will be the boom continent of the future.

Commercial development in the Latin-American countries, Dr. Bol- ton, prophesied, will send waves of immigrants to them from Europe. "Importance of Hispanic America as an economic unit and as a po- litical factor is becoming greater from day to day," he said. "It is one of the great reservoirs of raw materials. It will continue to at- tract foreign capital and foreign im- migration."

"It is entirely possible that with- in a short time Hispanic will out- number Saxon America in popula- tion."

"Saxon America with its 140,000,000 people is practically closed to European settlers. Hispanic Amer- ica with its 100,000,000 is wide open."

Coroner Is Convinced
Wounds in Head, Arms
From Different Guns

Detroit.—(P)—A secret investiga- tion was in progress today to de- termine the exact manner in which Arthur Morley Kugeman, young Grosse Pointe society man, met his death a week ago.

An earlier inquiry had ended with a finding by Chief Assistant Prosecutor W. Gomer Krise that Kugeman, son of a prominent New York family, shot himself.

But late yesterday, Coroner Al- bert L. French announced he was convinced that the wounds in Kuge- man's head and in his left arm came from different pistols, and said he would "exhume Kugeman's body, if necessary."

The investigators said they were puzzled by four bullet holes in the left sleeve of Kugeman's coat, Ear- lier, it had been suggested that a bullet through the head took a downward course and tore its way through the shoulder and sleeve of the coat. Dr. French, however, con- tended that was impossible, particu- larly in view of the fact that the only powder marks were around the hole furthest down on the sleeve. One bullet fired from a pis- tol found near the body has been found.

Kugeman was found shot to death shortly after leaving a din- ner party at his home. The only possible motive for suicide which has been advanced is that two re- cent minor automobile mishaps caused him to brood over a fatal accident in which he was involved eight years ago.

He was the husband of the for- mer Julia Buhl, member of a fami- ly prominent in Michigan.

Bond Market, Low Last June, Closes Year Much Higher

Collapse Didn't Come Until Well Along in Depression

New York.—(P)—The bond mar- ket was pulled out of a state of la- most complete demoralization in June of 1932, and ended the year at levels well above its beginning.

In the aggregate, bonds slid back- ward substantially in the last three months of 1932, but there has been a marked contrast between the ac- tion of the gilt-edged issues, and the more speculative groups.

With money rates sinking to ex- tremely low levels—call money having its most protracted period at 1 per cent since 1904—it was small wonder that the very highest grade issues ended the year at levels above even those of 1929, when the country was so engrossed with stocks. But the more speculative groups reacted rather substantially after September, evidently re- sisting the feeling that corporate reorganizations here and there would still be needed to reduce un- wisely debt structures.

Collapse Started in 1931
The collapse of the bond market came well along in the depression; in fact it did not really start until wide-spread banking trouble ap- peared in the summer of 1931, re- sulting in hasty dumping of bank investments to raise cash. The hope that banking difficulties were about over with the formation of the National Credit corporation and the Reconstruction Finance cor- poration was apparent in a fair re- covery in bonds around the start of 1932.

A sweeping decline started in the spring, however, and gained mo- mentum as congress tussled with the budget and inflation talk was heard. Gold flowed out of the coun- try; and banks continued to liq- uidate investments to raise funds to pay nervous depositors. Inaugura- tion of the federal reserve system's program of heavy U. S. government security purchases in April brought only a brief rally.

Rally Gets Under Way
Finally, concerted action was taken by the leading banking in- terests, which formed the $100,000,000 American Securities Investing corporation for the announced pur- pose of buying bonds. It was well- timed, coming just before the out- flow of gold ended, and a federal tax measure was finally enacted.

Hold Inquest in Fatal Accident

Jury Returns Verdict of
"Accidental Negligence"
In Waupaca Crash

A coroner's jury at Waupaca yester- day afternoon returned a verdict of "accidental negligence" after hearing testimony in connection with the fatal injuring of George Anderson, Jr., near Waupaca on Dec. 15. Adam Schider, coroner, who presided at the inquest, said that the verdict probably meant the same as if the jury had decided the accident was unavoidable, and he said county officials did not plan to take any action against Harold Schroeder, operator of a Waupaca filling station, and driver of the car which figured in the accident that caused Anderson's death.

Anderson was driving a buggy, owned by his uncle, Chris Oyen, with whom he was riding, when it was struck from the rear by Schroeder's car. Anderson, who was thrown from the buggy, died the next day. Testimony revealed that it was a dark night when the accident happened and Oyen was unable to swear whether there was a reflector on the buggy or not. Schroeder testified he did not see the buggy until his car struck it.

The following men were mem- bers of the jury: Charles Solle, Carl J. Nelson, George Droger, O. F. Peterson, Albert Pope and E. W. Woollever.

Stores in the city will not be open Saturday evening or Monday. They will close at 6 o'clock Satur- day evening and will not reopen until Tuesday morning.

Bank troubles soon began to dwin- dle, and prices surged up swiftly until, September, when the trend began to level off.

All listed bonds on the stock ex- change had a total quoted value of $39,512,000,000 on December 1, 1931. By June 1 last this had fallen to $36,856,000,000. It bounded up to $40,072,000,000 on September 1, and on December 1, 1932, stood at $38,095,000,000.

All Union Barber Shops will close Saturday, 6 P. M.

THE STANDARD REMAINS HIGH

IT is our constant endeavor to maintain the high standard of our service. The confidence of the people of Appleton is involved in every service we render, and any lowering of this standard would mean the sacrifice of the good-will which we have earned during the past 35 years.

WHEN Schommer Service is selected, the patron is assured of receiving the finest service it is possible to render, because Schommer Service is more thorough, complete, and personal. Schommers themselves render Schommer Service—every detail of it. They devote their entire time to it.

THAT is why the standard of Schommer Service remains high. And that is also why a constantly increasing number of people agree that Schommers render Appleton's finest funeral service.

Unified Bank Plan Urged by Reserve Board

Counsel Believes Action by Congress Would be Constitutional

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—The Federal Reserve board has advised the senate banking and currency committee that its counsel believes it would be constitutional for congress to enact a law bringing about a unified banking system in America.

On this point most of the discussion has heretofore turned, for it has been assumed that congress could not bring about national supervision of state banks or interfere with the operations of state banks.

Since the depression began the statistics show that bank failures are most numerous among banks that are not members of the federal reserve system. The senate banking and currency committee has been urged by various witnesses including Eugene Meyer, Owen D. Young and others to unify the American banking system so that instead of 49 different systems there would be uniform supervision.

It is not believed that congress would pass law, especially at this time which would be injurious to state banks, but it is considered probable that some measure might be adopted looking toward compulsory membership in the federal reserve system.

The competition between the national banking and 48 state banking systems has been going on for many years. Just as soon as rigid supervision is required for national banks, some states have been known to let down the bars and thus invite membership into the state system. Withdrawals from the federal reserve system have been frequent, due to reasons wholly local and competitive. It is not necessary for a bank to have a national bank charter to become a member of the Federal Reserve system, but it is required that federal reserve members meet certain standards of supervision.

Today two-thirds of the banks of the United States are not members of the Federal Reserve system and while they represent but one-third of the resources, it is nevertheless true that in the non-member group most of the trouble in recent years has developed.

Indirect Benefits
Banks that are non-members are able indirectly through correspondent banks to reap the benefits of membership, and it has been suggested that membership in the Federal Reserve could be compelled by prohibiting member banks from allowing their facilities to be used by non-members. The use of the taxing power on checks passing into interstate commerce has also been proposed.

The fact that a constitutional method has been found to bring about unification does not mean that congress would accept the recommendations. For the influence of the country banker in congress is rather dominant. Whether, in view of the large number of bank failures, congress might be moved by a stronger public opinion than it has had heretofore remains to be seen after the New Year, when agitation for the unified system of banking will be revived.

It is a question whether such a provision in the Glass bill would get through the present session anyway, no matter how favorable sentiment might be as compared with the reception similar proposals have had in the past. But the sponsors of the idea of a unified banking system are hopeful that if the plan is not now adopted it will at least be advanced on the legislative road so as to assure passage in the extra session.

Mothers, Mix This At Home for a Bad Cough

Saves $2. So Easy! No Cooking!

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough. It's no trouble to mix, and costs but a trifle, yet it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Mix a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water for a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any drugist, put it into a pint bottle, and fill up with your sugar syrup. The pint thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine, yet it is the most effective remedy that money can buy. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It soothes and heals the inflamed membrane, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and clears the air passages. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Pinex is a compound of Norway Pine, in concentrated form, famous as a healing agent for throat membranes. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Sees Harm in Ice Fishing On State's Inland Waters

BY BERT CLAFLIN
This is the time of the year when legislative action will soon have a great bearing on the future of our wild life, particularly, our game fish. According to a ruling made by an assistant attorney general of Wisconsin, it will not be legal to open inland waters for winter ice fishing, that is, to the unemployed, only.

For once, the law steps in and automatically responds to the call for help from our badly depleted ranks of game fishers. It is to be hoped that that ruling serves to prevent all winter ice fishing. I refer, of course, to inland waters. I do not wish by any means to further increase the sufferings of the unemployed, but I maintain that, as a direct help to such unemployed, as well as a wise economic move, the state should present them with the amount of fish possible for them to catch through the ice.

If it is the sincere intention to increase our supply of game fishes, then all winter ice fishing should at once be abolished, and for all time to come. From now, until about April, is the time, about all other times, when our game fish should be left alone. They are getting ready to spawn as nature intended them to do. The different species carry from a few thousands up to a half a million eggs per female. Is there anything then that can atone for the destruction of the spawners at such a time?

Holds to Stand
I have been criticised for taking the stand that I do, but I am standing pat on it. I am looking forward to the future, instead of becoming stampeded over a situation which prevails not only in Wisconsin, but in states where there are no game fish nor any waters that might harbor them. What would it avail the farmer to kill off his breeding stock? What would he do when they were gone?

As an indication of the value economically or otherwise, that the federal government places on our fish let me say that I have just received a report from the Bureau showing that the following were produced artificially: 4,885,000 bass; 10,357,200 sunfish; 6,951,000 crappies; 59,000 pike and pickerel; 7,000,300 white perch; 16,700 white bass; other species, 542,000. The cold water species were reported as follows: 41,100 grayling; 886,700 landlocked salmon; 17,898,000 speckled trout; 13,953,000 loach leven and other trout totalling about 20,000,000.

In view of the foregoing how do you reconcile the following statement made by Henry O'Malley, federal fish commissioner? Mr. O'Malley writes: "Six inch bass and four inch trout will have a chance to produce their kind, and after all, our angling must to a very large extent depend upon this method of replenishment rather than hatchery output."

SHOULD BE ROTTEN
Nebraska City, Neb. — After 52 years of keeping the doctor away, any apple should be rotten, but such is not the case of the apple owned by Etta Ellsworth. Fifty-two years ago Mrs. Ellsworth heard that if one struck an apple full of cloves he could keep it indefinitely. So she tried it with an apple from her brother's orchard. After 52 years the apple is still in existence, although it is full of cloves that the skin cannot be seen.

Roosevelt Ready To Leave Office As New York Head

Making Plans to Get Information on U. S. Financial Situation

Albany, N. Y.—(AP)—With the end of his term as governor of New York only two days away, President-elect Roosevelt today was clearing his desk for his successor, Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman. At the same time the governor was preparing plans for seeking first hand information on the nation's financial situation before committing himself to any tax policy designed to balance the federal budget.

In connection with the gathering of this information, which his friends feel will be one of the first tasks to which he will set himself after his term of governor ends Saturday, Mr. Roosevelt was preparing for a conference with Vice-President-elect John N. Garner, speaker of the house, either at his Hyde Park estate or his New York city home some day this week.

His hesitancy attributed by his advisers to an unwillingness to accept any of the reports from Washington regarding the amount of the national deficit, Mr. Roosevelt would not say whether he believed the federal budget can be balanced during the present short session. Estimates of the federal deficit have ranged from $400,000,000 to a billion dollars.

The president-elect yesterday approved a plan proposed by the American Legislators' association, with headquarters in Chicago, for an interstate conference of legislators at Washington, Feb. 3, "to secure a better coordination of the revenue systems of the federal government and of the 48 states."

"A splendid idea," he called the proposal in a letter to Henry Toll, head of the association.

Meanwhile, at the executive mansion, the Roosevelt personal staff proceeded to gather together the family's belongings in preparation for moving out of the official residence of New York's governors at the end of the week.

A dinner for Colonel Lehman, after which the new governor will be sworn in privately, on Saturday night will be Mr. Roosevelt's last concern as host of the big Eagle-stabbling.

Million Already Have Seen 1933 Fair's Wonders

Exposition, Taking Shape At Chicago, Magnet To Crowds

Chicago—More than a million people have already come to wander through the 1933 World Fair grounds, though the Century of Progress will not be officially open until June 1, 1933.

Since last June there have been 600,000 paid admissions to the unfinished grounds, and with those who came before that, when no count was made, an estimate of a million to date is regarded here as conservative.

Regular bus lines run to the Fair entrance, and uniformed guides take visitors through the grounds where a few hardy concessionaires already have set up stands and more will move in this spring.

Some of the Fair buildings have gone no farther than the ground work on others the steel skeleton is rising. But seven millions of dollars have already gone into the Fair and as 1200 workmen in all among the foundations, nearly 80 per cent of the actual construction is already finished. You can't see it, because the work has been so largely laying out of streets, water mains, foundations, and the like. But it's there, and after the first of the year the buildings will rise with mushroom-like rapidity.

Chicago Dirt Flies Already the Administration Building, the Hall of Science, the Travel and Transport, Agriculture and Social Science Buildings, the magnificent Chinese Temple, the replica of old Fort Dearborn and the Lincoln Group, are complete.

Nearly all of the activity at present is at the north and of the two-mile stretch along Chicago's famous lake front, and ground has already been broken for every Century of Progress building. The other two-thirds of the area, the whole of which is enclosed by three and a half miles of steel fence, has been leased to the 19 foreign governments, states and private interests which will present exhibits. Derricks, steel-sheds, concrete mixers, cranes, in the streets, where full-grown trees, shrubs and plants are the landscapers build terraces and approaches.

Concrete is being poured for the highest towers in the world, which will support the Sky Ride, in which visitors will be whisked in rocket cars along a 2000-foot span of cable 600 feet in air, from the mainland to Northern Island. By the first of June, everything will be ready. For Chicago as a municipality, may not be able to pay its bills or control its racketeers, but when it utters its famous motto "I Will" in connection with a privately-financed project like the Century of Progress, things generally move. Fair officials say they are going to stage the greatest exposition of all time and that with the memory of the Columbian Exposition of 1893 fresh in their minds, certainly the greatest yet to today.

For when Uncle Abner and Aunt Emma went home from the Fair in '93, the memory of the White City, the Court of Honor, the Midway Plaisance, the Ferris Wheel, the Streets of Cairo and the wiggly dancing of Little Egypt, were never quite erased from their minds. Deducting duplicate admissions, more than 12,000,000 people thronged the Columbian Exposition, and that meant one in every six people in the country in the Gay Nineties.

The Modern Side The effects of that exposition reverberate today. It really began the city planning movement in America and one writer said "it revealed to millions of Americans whose lives were necessarily colorless and narrow, the splendid possibilities of art and the compelling power of the beautiful." Less than one man's natural lifetime before the Fair.

"LOST" 30 YEARS, SISTERS REUNITED

Nearly 30 years ago, a mother dying, left two baby girls in a New York orphanage. Both babies were adopted and grew up ignorant of each other's existence. Then one day Mrs. Agnes Roux, Long Island, N. Y., applied at the orphanage to adopt a baby. Mrs. Margaret Fowley of Chicago had just written in for a birth certificate. The orphanage knew they were sisters, put them in touch with each other, and here you see them as they met in Chicago to spend the holidays together. Mrs. Roux, left, and Mrs. Fowley.

volved had howled in the streets of what was to become America's second city. The Columbian Exposition was in celebration of 400 years since Columbus discovered America. The Century of Progress is to celebrate the remoulding of a world by scientific progress in the 100 years since the founding of Chicago. And since that is to be the keynote, the design of the buildings and grounds and the exhibits themselves will look to the future, whereas the view of the Columbian Exposition was toward the past.

The exhibits will tell, graphically and in words of one syllable, the story of a hundred years' progress in steel-making, in grain-growing, in chemistry, in biology, in the social sciences. The intention is to make the exhibits not merely collections of things, but a focus of the scientific thought of today, a graphic demonstration of how we have arrived where we are, and a glimpse of the probable future.

Outdoing 1933 The classic ideas of balance, and the neat grouping of white buildings around a central court, have been studiously avoided. The committee of architects, headed by Harvey Wiley Corbett, has been guided by the idea of adapting their designs to use and the surroundings. Color will be freely used in nearly all the buildings; the Administration Building is a brilliant blue.

The low, windowless building of the Hall of Science will change its hues like a rainbow. Ultra-violet light will be used to make blank walls glow like purple fire, and lanterns shimmer like lakes of seething flame. Walls have been contrived of a plaster made mostly of old newspapers. Nothing has been added to the buildings that has no practical use, in accordance with modern doctrine.

Exhibits of steel housing and modern construction are already topped by the amazing "Glorified Gas Tank" of the Travel and Transport Building. Its huge dome literally "breathes," being made of sliding plates which slip over one another as the dome contracts and expands. The dome is supported by a web of steel cables, like a suspension bridge. There are no pillars.

So Chicago rushes down the home stretch of the building of an Exposition that aims to draw a gasp of wonderment from even the supposedly sophisticated citizen of 1933.

Numerous Surprises for City Relief Department

Opening Christmas packages on Christmas morning isn't in it with the public relief department when it comes to surprises. With people falling more and more into the habit of donating things to the relief commission, it has come to the point where he wouldn't be surprised to see a live cow or a brood of chickens walk in on him some day.

Last week a farm woman brought a bushel of crackles, the residue of "fried-out" lard, to the city commissary department. The crackles, which many of the thrifty housewives on the relief list used for baked bread, an old German meatloaf, added a delectable bit to the weekly grocery order.

Recently a great deal of day-old bakery, some buttermilk, jellies, and vegetables have been donated to the commissary department. So far this year Schweitzer has not been forced to buy any cabbage for the storeroom, as a sufficient amount has been donated.

Irish in Protest Of Execution by British Hangman

Dublin, Irish Free State—(AP)—A banner bearing the words "British Hangman Destroys Irishman: Is This Justice?"—was displayed today amidst a throng gathered outside Mountjoy prison when Patrick McDermott, Roscommon farmer, was executed for the murder of his brother, John.

Pierrepoint, noted English professional executioner, had been commissioned to carry out the sentence as there was no official executioner in the Free State.

There were vigorous protests from the throng and, when the execution hour approached, the crowd knelt in prayer.

Petitions for McDermott's reprieve had been extensively signed.

Duplicate Play Requires Sound Approach Bidding

BY ELY CULBERTSON

There are probably more people playing Duplicate bridge throughout the country today than played either Duplicate or Rubber bridge five years ago. The reason for the great popularity of this type of diversion is easily understood. It takes the game of Contract, where skill is already at a premium, and places it at an even greater premium. In short, the Duplicate player is practically never the victim of bad cards, because he knows that no matter how worthless a holding he has, there will be someone else at every other table holding this identical hand at some time or other and that he will not be at any disadvantage.

Duplicate bridge is not the same game as regular Rubber bridge. The rules of course, are the same; the scoring is almost identical, but the tactics of the players differ somewhat. The part-score, of course is non-existent at Duplicate, as far as making a game on the combination of two separate hands is concerned. Therefore, the necessity

The Story of Sue

By Margery Hale

NANCY told Grace that it was lovely to find her. Told her in a thin, light voice that seemed robbed of its cadent huskiness. Sue said some casual friendly things to Arnold Page. Then she sat down by the fireplace.

"It's cold tonight, isn't it?" The words trailed away.

"Bitterly cold," Page answered. "Is it?" I hadn't noticed," Grace returned listlessly. "But it was snowing heavily, wasn't it? Funny that I should forget—such things." Her voice was tired.

"Not funny at all," Nancy answered. "When one is in love, my dear, one always does!"

Grace started. Nancy didn't notice. Her eyes were on the fire. Sue was sure that Nancy did not know that the words had slipped out. She had been thinking them, not meaning to say them. Sue knew, too, that Nancy was thinking of Grace with reference to Arnold Page.

"I'm not in love," Grace answered slowly. "Love is not in my dictionary. I'm going after other things."

"Don't I did, and it didn't pay." Then Nancy was silent again. "Still, I don't know. Maybe I have lasted. I'm too pale in the morning, until I put on my color, and I have a temper."

Sue interrupted. The conversation was growing melodramatic. Nancy didn't have a temper. Her skin was fair and white and lovely. It wasn't like her to air her views in this way. She was being personal in public which was something Nancy didn't do. She was much too well-bred.

"The storm's growing rather terrible. Listen to the wind." Nancy nodded. "It was all I could do to get through the drifts. And the water in that creek down the road is rising dreadfully. The wind will blow the bridge away if it doesn't quiet down. If not, it's going to be flooded. Not for an hour or two yet, though. I must leave soon. I'll have to take the other road."

The conversation drifted into other channels. Suddenly Nancy spoke again.

"I filed a suit for divorce today."

"Nancy!" Sue said her name softly. "Oh Nancy!"

There was a strange, warm silence in the room. Nancy was obtaining a divorce. And Nancy had loved Arnold Page years before. He had come back, still devoted to her. Grace's eyes grew rounded, not longer. But Nancy didn't notice.

"I'm going away when it's all over!"

"A divorce. But why, Nancy?" That was Grace.

Nancy's eyes met hers. Suddenly Grace knew. Nancy was getting a divorce because she wanted to marry Page—and now Nancy believed that Arnold Page had come there with her that night, and probably was beginning to grow fond of her. She knew that she must tell her that she was mistaken. That after all, many men took women places and didn't care for them except as friends. Nancy knew that of course. But she couldn't say anything now. Not in front of Page himself. She wished that someone else would explain. Nobody could, though. Sue and Jack didn't know that her meeting with Page had been accidental.

"I must go. If I hurry maybe I can make the bridge road," Nancy said.

Still Arnold Page had not spoken.

Be Careful of Remarks Made Before Children

BY ANGELO PATRI

Of course there ought to be no embarrassing questions. Not that the question out not to come, but that the embarrassment ought not to appear. What questions is there that a child can ask that ought to embarrass us? None. But the fact remains that there are plenty and we have to be prepared to meet them gracefully.

The embarrassing question usually comes when there is company. That is what makes it embarrassing. If nobody was about to hear what the child said, and what you said in reply, you would not feel at all shy. It is the audience that counts. Just the same that audience is going to count and there is no way out save to train the child not to ask his questions at the dinner table, or in the presence of visitors. Ask him to save them up until you can give him your full attention. Tell him that it is not polite to talk about things that interest him only. And know that he will ask just the same.

When he pops his question into the quiet of the room school yourself and answer calmly. "Quite so, Bobbie. No doubt your friend is right. I'll have to think about it and talk it over with you by and by. Just now would you mind going out to tell Minnie that I would like her to give you a glass of water for me."

If you have trained him right the tone of your voice will persuade him to go after that glass of water, and to discontinue his pursuit of knowledge, or his airing of it, for the present.

Don't feel called upon to apologize to the guests. They are all old enough to know what to expect of children. Perhaps some of them are wise enough to know that children are not sophisticated people and that ordinary facts of life are dramatically interesting to them. If they are not, they ought to be. Let them learn now and go right on with the party.

Don't forget your promise to talk the matter over. The child who asks the embarrassing question in public has indicated that his mind is so full of the importance of it that he feels it is big enough to make him as big as the grownups, if he can just make it clear to them that he is in the know too.

Don't punish a child for asking an embarrassing question before guests. It is usually your fault that he does so. If you had taught him all he needed to know, if you had trained him in social behavior according to his understanding, he would not have made the mistake. Now you have to make the best of it. Begin teaching him the day after. And keep on teaching him so that it will not be necessary for him to force his necessity upon you before guests.

And one thing more. If gossip about relatives and the neighbors is not passed along in the presence of children they will not embarrass you by repeating it, or introducing a little of their own, at inopportune moments. You can head off most of the embarrassing moments you are threatened with by teaching the children how and what and when beforetime. It ought to be impossible for a child to embarrass us. When he does we know we are at fault, not he.

LIFE'S ODDITIES

Look Your Best For New Year's

BY ELSIE PIERCE

SPARKLING lights, sparkling wit, sparkling women! On with gayety. Ring out the old, ring in the new. The young king brings such golden promises with him, promises of prosperity and a higher standard of beauty in all things. So let your loveliest self usher him in.

The Luxury Loving

For "them as has" and can indulge their love of luxury, a few hours spent in a reliable beauty salon will help boost your beauty as well as spirit.

First—a facial. Sink back in a comfortable chair, tell yourself you're going to relax every nerve and fibre, let the deft fingers of the expert operator mold, pat, lift, slap, stimulate your circulation, make your skin glow and your eyes sparkle, apply make-up deftly and send you forth looking glamorous.

Then—your hair. A scalp massage, perhaps an oil treatment, then a shampoo, a color rinse if you wish, to highlight the beauty beams that the world seldom sees dancing there, then a setting. Let a master artist do that for you. And a new coiffure just for the occasion is not amiss. Why not one of the intricate and intriguing sculptured arrangements with ringlets or twists. Wear a jeweled clip in your hair if your coiffure and costume are not too elaborate.

A manicure — to hand you beauty as well as peace of mind. No ragged cuticle edge, no streaks or missing patches in the polish.

Home and a warm, relaxing bath with salts or scented powder added, or perhaps a toilet water in your bath. Or, a toilet water rub afterward. Delightful. An hour's nap with a net or cloth protecting your hair so it will not become disarranged. Keep it on while you dress. Change your make-up if you need to. Then comb and pinch your hair into place. Ready for a happy evening? I hope it will be.

Home Treatments

I cannot have the treatments on a salon, give them to yourself at home. Fix your nails follow the same procedure that a manicurist would. My hand bulletins will tell you how. Then, if you have time for an oil treatment, followed after several hours by a shampoo, fine, otherwise if your hair needs it merely shampoo. Pinch and set your hair in place while wet. Adjust a hair net over the coiffure. Let it dry naturally. Combine bath with beautifying facial, cleansing the skin before bath then applying a nourishing cream which leave on during bath. After the bath remove cream and finish with ice-skin tonic patting. Take your nap. After the nap apply a finishing lotion. One of the powdery lotions is especially appropriate for back, hands, arms, neck and shoulders as well as face. Make-up. Dress. You probably look lovely. Ready for gayety. Start the New Year beautifully. (Copyright, 1932) will be entirely different from my pattern?

Answer: The best thing to do, I think, is to try out various sample cups and choose those which look best with one or both of your sets. Since the table on which cups and saucers appear cannot possibly be a formal one, the informality of it "goes with" the china you use. In other words, if you choose to put cups and saucers on your lunch or dinner table, there is no definite reason why they must match the china.

My dear Mrs. Post: (1) Are plateau mirrors for table decoration in good taste? (2) After which course should the service plate be removed?

Answer: (1) They have always been more or less in fashion, and are in good taste when suitable to the other table appointments. French ones, mounted in silver, look well on a damask cloth, but flat ones are better on a bare table. (2) A service plate is exchanged for the hot plate of the first course. Or if a first cold course is eaten on it, it is exchanged for the fresh plate of the second course. If the first course is soup, the soup plate is put down upon the service plate, then the two plates are lifted off together and exchanged for the plate of the next course.

Here are Some Examples of Diplomatic Match-Breaking

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—You say in a recent article that the way to break off an undesirable match is by the use of diplomacy. Will you explain how? AN ANXIOUS PARENT.

Answer:

On the theory that an ounce of experience is worth a ton of theory, I will cite cases that I have known in which parents have prevented their children from making matches that they knew would inevitably end in misery and divorce. Furthermore, they alienated their youngsters from the objects of their temporary infatuation so deftly and painlessly that they never knew that mother and father had had a hand in it and attributed their escape to their own good sense and judgment.

As Exhibit A I present for your consideration the case of Mrs. B. Mrs. B's daughter was madly in love with a fascinating youth addicted to drink and the daughter's father felt that it would be romantic and wonderful to reform him by marrying him. Mrs. B. pointed out in vain to her daughter the dangers and difficulties of a woman trying to make a Keely cure of herself. Also that the prescription seldom worked. And when this failed she sent her daughter to visit in a home in which the husband came home soured about five nights a week.

What argument had failed to accomplish, the object lesson of the drunkard's wife was not appealing, and it didn't take the girl long to decide that she wouldn't care to sit up night after night waiting for the drag of a stumbling foot-step and that there was nothing romantic about helping a maudlin, intoxicated man who was bleary-eyed and dirty and repulsive to get to bed, where he could sleep off his stupor.

The next exhibit is Mrs. C., who tried very much the same tactics upon her daughter, who was enamored of one of these temperamental geniuses who spend their time trying to find themselves, instead of hunting a job, and who cannot bring themselves to do any such sordid thing as real work. So Mrs. C. sent her daughter to visit in a home where the wife took in boarders to support an able-bodied husband who loafed and invited his soul.

Sally C., not being an utter fool even if she was in love, was warned in time to save herself from becoming a meal ticket to a male parasite.

The next exhibit is Mrs. D., whose daughter Maud was stumbling into a love affair with a chap who was all right morally, but who had a hateful, cantankerous disposition, and who was a good deal of a tightwad. One of the steadies, you know, who never spent a nickel on a girl if they can help it; who spend their evenings camped on a girl's chairs listening in on the radio; who think it is so much nicer to eat her mother's good dinners than take her out to a restaurant and who make the kind of husbands who snoop in the icebox and ask their wives what they did with the quarter they gave them week before last.

So Mrs. D. got busy, and every time she sat down to do a little chat with the youth with a Yale look on his pocketbook she would casually and artlessly mention something about how much money it took to support a girl in these days and how fond Maud was of fine clothes and how many dresses and hats she had and how much silk stockings and crepe de chine lingerie cost. The effect was magical. The close-fisted one had no idea of letting himself in for an extravagant wife. He simply faded out of the picture and Maud didn't know to this day why he so suddenly cooled off.

Then there was Mrs. E., whose son fell in love with a pretty little Dumb Dora who rolled her eyes at him and asked him fool questions and who didn't have two ideas, in her head to rub together. The boy was clever, highly educated, fond of reading, and the mother knew that they would be utterly congenial and have nothing in common after the first physical attraction for each other had worn off. She didn't waste any time and effort trying to explain this to her son, however.

Instead, she invited the girl to spend a month with them at their summer place and she left her son to entertain her. She gave the boy undiluted doses of the girl's society and in a week he was so bored that he cut short his vacation and fled from her as he would from a pest.

And so on, and so on, in endless variation. Oh, there are lots of ways of killing a cat besides choking it on butter.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—What, oh, what is wrong with me? I can't take life in a happy way. And why? I am only 15, but I am so miserable that I have been on the verge of committing suicide many times, yet I have nothing to be miserable about. Nothing interests me. Nothing seems worth while. And I see no use in going on living. Can you suggest any remedy for my trouble? TIRED OF LIFE.

Answer:

Sure. Nothing easier. All that ails you is just being 15, and all that you need to do is just to let Nature take its course, and in a year or two you will outgrow the morbidness that has been more or less in fashion, and are in good taste when suitable to the other table appointments. French ones, mounted in silver, look well on a damask cloth, but flat ones are better on a bare table. (2) A service plate is exchanged for the hot plate of the first course. Or if a first cold course is eaten on it, it is exchanged for the fresh plate of the second course. If the first course is soup, the soup plate is put down upon the service plate, then the two plates are lifted off together and exchanged for the plate of the next course.

til this debt is paid. If she loves you she will not mind waiting three years. I strongly object to long engagements that have to drag on interminably, but it is a different matter when there is a definite time limit, as in your case, that you can probably reduce by putting in extra effort.

Don't marry, however, until you have paid back the money that was advanced to you on no other guarantee than some one's faith in your integrity and manhood. If there is any debt of honor on earth, it is that, and if you default on it you are the most contemptible of wretches.

Always store yeast in the ice box until ready to use.

A good tapestry may always be safely washed. Do not put soap on it, but wash in the same way as flannel. Rinse very thoroughly, put through a wringer if possible, and iron on the wrong side when nearly dry.

The best meats for soups and stews are the neck pieces of beef and lamb.

Kaukauna Five Meets Freedom Friday Night

Coach Little's Team Seeking Second Victory Of Season

Kaukauna—Coach Paul Little's Kaukauna high school cagers will meet Freedom high's quint here Friday evening. It will be the first meeting between the two schools on a basketball floor in several years. The school football teams have played frequently, however. Freedom, with the outstanding team in its conference, will invade the local court trying to chalk up a victory in their first appearance here for several years.

The Kaws have been defeated twice by Brillion high school cagers, but won from the school alumni by a four point margin. With only two lettersmen returning to form the nucleus of a team, Coach Little was forced to train freshmen and sophomores this year. Block and Grogan performed with the squad last year, but none of these players saw much action.

Jerry Vils will start at center, Grogan and Wolf at forwards, and Schermitzler and Stanelle at guards. Other players who may see action are Sisco, Block, Stanelle, Pix and Nagel. Block has not been with the squad for some time because of an injured eye, but may be able to play Friday evening. Coach Little has been working with the squad this week trying to polish off some of the inexperience. In games that the Kaws have performed they have been found traveling, and in this manner have lost possession of the ball. They have shown a fair eye for the hoop, but their plays do not function well yet.

Skaters Use River As Ice Rinks Melt

Kaukauna—Skaters have been using the ice along a stretch of the river adjacent to W. Wisconsin-ave for a rink since warm weather spoiled the two municipal rinks. Wednesday there were nearly a hundred skaters on the ice near the school where the Busch and Flynn Ice Co. is making its annual harvest. The municipal rinks will be flooded with the arrival of cold weather.

Engineers Hold Lead in Bowling

Two Matches Postponed Because of Illness of Team Members

Kaukauna — Because of illness of players on several teams, two matches in the City bowling league were postponed Tuesday evening. Games postponed were U. E. Engineers versus Bayorgens, and Bankers versus Kalupa Bakers. Jack Hilgenberg, with games of 235, 198, and 211 for a series total of 644, led the individual scoring.

Hilgenberg is a member of the Nightingale team, which won three straight games from the Electricians. The Nightingales scored totals of 925, 837, and 917 against scores of 867, 853, and 867 for the Electricians. Thilmany's Bags won three games from Service Laundries. Bags' scores were 909, 879, and 932, while Laundries' scores were 897, 856, and 925.

League bowling will be resumed next Tuesday evening instead of on Monday because of the legal observance of New Year's Day on Monday. Second shift matches will show Bayorgens versus Service Laundries and Thilmany Bags versus U. S. Engineers.

BY QUINTON JAMES

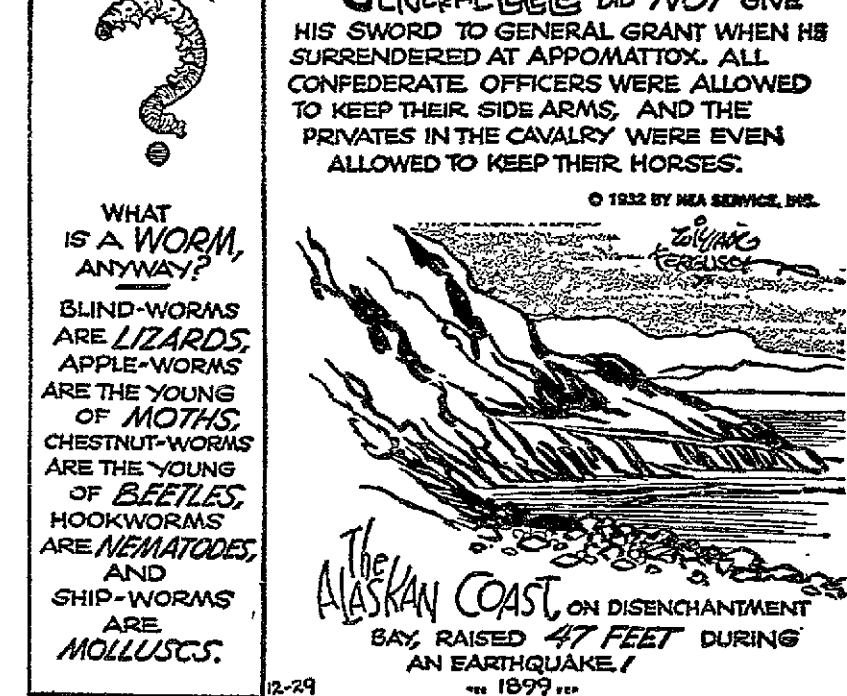

Commemorating the seventy-fifth anniversary of the introduction of postage stamps by Rumania, the postoffice is issuing a 1933 series of eight stamps ranging from 25 bani to 16 lei. Only 200,000 of each are being printed.

All the backgrounds are white, and none but the 16 lei is perforated. The 25 bani, black, rectangular, has the wild-ox design of the original 1838 stamp. The one lei, round, violet, shows the lion-bearing design formerly found on Rumanian coins. The 2 lei, green, round, carries the former coat of arms.

The 3 lei, round, red, has an eagle and castle design. The 6 lei, octagonal, wine-colored, shows the modern coat of arms. The 7.50 lei, round, light-blue, has the spread eagle of early coins. The 10 lei, round, dark blue, carries the wild-ox design. The 16 lei, light green, similar to the 1903 issue commemorating the opening of the new post-

ROBERT E. LEE'S surrender at Appomattox was a most unique one. Historians have said that Grant returned Lee's sword to him after the surrender. But General Grant had specified that Confederate officers were to retain their side arms, and General Lee's sword was not removed from its beautiful gold and leather scabbard, a present to him from English ladies. General Grant did everything to spare the feelings of the Confederate general. He even apologized for appearing in a private's uniform, and without his sword.

INFLATION PROPOSALS SEEN AS NATION'S CHIEF WORRY

BY FRANK A. VANDERLIP (Former President, National City Bank)

New York —(P)—It obviously is difficult, in a limited space, to make adequate comment on a year's events when those events present such complexities as do the economic and financial affairs of 1932. Rather than undertake such a feat of condensation I prefer to accept the dangerous role of fore-caster, because I can more easily put such forecasting within those limits.

I will predict that the coming year will not be free from economic worries. Some of those worries will be concerned with the social and financial conditions which will exist, but in far greater measure will worries be aroused by legislative and individual efforts to find remedies.

"We now know fairly well the extent and character of this depression. We will be most fearful, however, "to fly to evils we know not of," which will be typified by novel, radical and ill-considered plans designed to cure existing difficulties.

The immediate outlook for business in 1933 is unhappy on two counts. There is at present shockingly little business and what there is of it is being done on a distressingly small margin of profit.

There is solid ground for optimism, however, in the fact that there has been the most drastic pruning of overhead that we have known in two generations, with the result that business has been put under economical and keen management.

I predict that the only threat to the maintenance of our gold monetary standard will originate from within the country. So far as foreign demands are concerned we already have stood the test, and the international balance probably will add to rather than reduce our gold stock.

There is serious probability, however, that owing to the difficulty, if not impossibility, of liquidating domestic indebtedness at the present price level there will be serious attempts to bring about a devaluation of the dollar by some form of inflation.

I predict therefore that the most serious worry of the coming year will be concerned with the various proposals for liquidating indebtedness through some form of dollar devaluation.

Motorecycle Cabs Threat To Manila Pony Carts

Manila, P. I. —(P)— Motor vehicles are beginning to threaten Manila's traditional cabs, the pony-drawn, two-wheeled carts called "carromats" or "caleas". Fleets of small taxis of both American and English make have gone into service, carrying two passengers for 10 cents a mile.

Another type is a combination motorcycle and passenger cab dubbed as "auto-caleas".

The smallest types of vehicles are favored because gasoline costs 30 cents a gallon.

STUNG BY SPIDER Fort Worth, Tex.—Milas Jones' spider, while inanimate, stung him to the tune of five years in prison. Jones was found guilty of stealing an automobile by means of a "spider," an electrical device for starting cars without the ignition key. He confessed to six other cases of auto theft and received a three-year sentence for each case, but the sentences will run concurrently.

Office, Shows a Mail Coach Leaving the Postoffice.

Rumania also has issued three welfare stamps, with a face value of 4, 6 and 10 lei, plus an additional charge in each case of 1 lei, for the benefit of the tuberculosis sanitarium for postal employees.

Fruitful Russia A 50 kopek stamp has been issued by Russia to commemorate the tenth anniversary of the MOPR (International Society for the Aid of Political Prisoners). Printed in red, it shows a worker breaking into a jail to release prisoners, whose manacled hands are stretched out.

Russia, prolific issuer, also has put out stamps in honor of the fifteenth anniversary of the revolution.

The 3k, deep violet, shows Lenin addressing the workers from the top of an armored car on his return from Switzerland in 1917; the 5k, dark brown, the capture of the Winter Palace; the 15k, dark green, a modern harvesting scene, and the 35k, slate brown, an allegorical scene representing the oppressed looking to the U. S. S. R., with the handwriting "Lenin" in the sky.

South Will Have Much More Power Under Roosevelt

Next Administration Should Benefit "Sons Of Dixie"

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—The south soon will be back "in the saddle" more effectively than at any time since before the Civil war.

The Republicans probably will be found hollering about it soon after the Roosevelt administration and the Seventy-third congress come into being. Although the idea that the south will be imposing any sectional rule on the rest of the country is a false alarm, her sons will be heavily sprinkled through the positions of federal power.

Vice president-elect Jack Garner of Texas, to begin with, will be the first president or vice president elected from below the Mason-Dixon line since Lincoln and Andrew Johnson ran on the same ticket in 1864. He is not the first man from that section to be nominated by the Democrats for second place, but he is the first whose nomination has done him any good. And the fact cannot be ignored that he might become the south's first president in three score or more years.

You might even begin the list with Roosevelt himself. For years he has been living a large part of the time in Georgia, which he has described as his "second home." He can hardly be regarded as a 100 per cent "Yankee." He won his nomination through support of an overwhelming number of the politicians of the South and West.

The next speaker is likely to be a southern man. The three leading candidates to succeed Garner are Joe Byrns of Tennessee, John McDuffie of Alabama and Majority Leader Henry Rainey of Illinois. Rainey hasn't any edge in the contest. He lives on a farm, so far south in Illinois that he is in no sense associated with the northern urban Democracy. And if he should win, the Democratic leader in the House would succeed him surely would be a southerner, whereas if Byrns or McDuffie win the leader will be Rainey or another northerner.

The north and west get their break in the next congress through the fact that they have suddenly elected enough members to the Democratic majorities to end the south's numerical congressional majority in the party. That should allay any weird fears about the danger of sectional rule, but the south will get nearly all the important posts on Capitol Hill because it has kept electing so many of its representatives consecutively for such long periods as to qualify them under the seniority tradition. Joe Robinson of Arkansas presumably will be the senate's majority leader. Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas doubtless will remain as the Democratic whip. Key Pittman of Nevada is the most likely choice to succeed George Moses of New Hampshire as the senate's president pro tem.

Reports have had it that Roosevelt planned to name three men from the south to his cabinet, which is certainly fair enough in any Democratic administration. His choices are still a matter of speculation, but you hear most about Senator John S. Cohen of Georgia, and Senator Carter Glass and ex-Governor Harry F. Byrd both of Virginia.

Unless individual preference or some other arrangement prevents, nine of the ten most important senate committee chairmanships will go to the south and the other, Judiciary, to Ashturn of Arizona. The list: Agriculture, Smith of South Carolina; Appropriations, Glass of Virginia; Banking and Currency, Fletcher of Florida; Finance, Harrison of Mississippi; Foreign Relations, Swanson of Virginia; Interstate Commerce, Smith of South Carolina; Military Affairs,

Aids Jobless

Arms laden with Christmas bundles, Ethel Barrymore Colt, daughter of the famous actress, is shown arriving at the Mayfair Yacht Club in New York to aid in wrapping presents to be given at the dance for the benefit of the Emergency Unemployment Committee.

Fletcher of Florida; Naval Affairs, Swanson of Virginia; Rules, Robinson of Arkansas. Neither Smith, Fletcher or Swanson would be chairman of two big committees, so there will be some rejiggering—conditioned by the fact that other southerners are usually next in line for such chairmanships as they pass up.

Meanwhile, the twelve most important committees of the Democratic House are chairmanned by southern representatives and there aren't likely, at the most, to be more than a couple of changes in that sectional set-up.

THIRTY MILES OF GOLD Johannesburg, S. Africa — South Africa expects to benefit greatly from a new gold supply which has been discovered by geologists. It is a gold reef, containing an estimated reserve of $1,390,000,000, and extends for a distance of 30 miles. A prospecting company has been formed and options for five years have been obtained.

Galapagos Isles To be Surveyed By Science Group

Volcania Area Expected to Be Made Sanctuary for Strange Animals

Los Angeles—(AP)—Just 100 years after Charles Darwin revealed the little string of volcanic Galapagos islands on the equator to be a paradise for naturalists, a little band of scientists embarks today on a survey expected to result in these now scientifically famous islands, being made a sanctuary for the strange forms of animal life existing there.

The expedition is the third and roundup investigation headed and financed by Captain George Allan Hancock, Los Angeles banker and oil operator by vocation and explorer by avocation. The Smithsonian Institution of Washington, the San Diego Zoological society and the University of Southern California are represented.

Captain Hancock explained one of the objects of completing the survey is to provide a report for the government of Ecuador, which owns them, with recommendations they be set aside as a permanent sanctuary of scientific research.

Buccaneers and whalers based in these islands 750 miles off the coast of Ecuador in the Pacific long before Darwin visited them on the beagle 100 years ago. A few years before the Darwin visit, Charles Island, one of the 10 larger ones of the Galapagos, was made a convict settlement to which political exiles were sent.

It was the report by Darwin of the Beagle cruise, a classic for students of natural history, that revealed the islands to be a little world of their own.

Darwin found that most organic productions there were aboriginal creations found nowhere else. Geologically recent in its rise from the Pacific, he reported, this group both in time and space brought the researchers somewhat nearer to that mystery of mysteries, the first appearance of new beings on earth.

The islands still are in the volcanic formative stage.

Many Expeditions

Many expeditions since Darwin have studied the rare specimens—tortoises, marine and land iguanas, blue and red footed boobys, anglefish, frigate birds, red lizards, and a multitude of reptiles, insects, bird, fish and microscopic organisms.

At the old convict island of Charles, the party will visit Dr. Charles Ritter, self-exiled Berlin raw food theorist, who fled from his wife and Berlin social circles in 1929, taking with him Frau Koervin, Berlin socialite, for a back-to-nature life on the equatorial island.

The party aboard the Valero 3rd which Captain Hancock had built for the expedition, will include Dr. Henry Wegeforth, president of the San Diego Zoological society; Cyrus Perkins, San Diego Herpetologist; Fred Garth, ornithologist; Fred Ziesenhenn, entomologist of the University of Southern California; Dr. Charles Sweet, photographer; George Hugh Banning, author.

At the Canal Zone the party will be joined by Dr. Waldo L. Schmitt, professor of invertebrate marine life of the Smithsonian institution.

The Valero 3rd is an all-steel, 749 gross tonnage, 200-foot craft, built on specifications like a navy destroyer, with twin Diesel engines developing 2,000 H. P. It is especially equipped to bring back specimens of marine life. The cruise is expected to last between two and three months.

Man Is Recovering After Inhaling Gas

John Jansen, 24, a roomer at 514 N. Morrison-st., was recovering at St. Elizabeth hospital this morning from the effects of inhaling illuminating gas at his boarding house late yesterday. Jansen was found by John Lipske, another roomer in the house, in the bathroom with the door locked and a gas hot water heater turned on, police said. Lipske immediately notified police and Jansen was taken to the hospital, where attending physicians said he would recover.

A gain of a pound a day is considered the average for a normal hog.

MONA TOWNSEND, beautiful young widow, inherits her husband's millions with the provision that she must not rewed. Her marriage, arranged by her husband's lawyer who was Mona's employer, was a strange affair, leaving her free at the end of a year to become her husband's wife in actuality or secure a divorce. Mona, in love with her husband's nephew, BARRY TOWNSEND, agreed to the marriage when she thought Barry was lost to her.

She employs LOTTIE CARR, a companion and they set out for South America, where Barry and STEVE SACCARIELLI are partners in a diamond mine. Mona's brother, BUD, works at the mine. Mona hopes for a reconciliation with Barry. She also feels Barry is entitled to a share of his uncle's fortune and wants to find a way to arrange this legally.

Learning that Barry and Steve are on vacation at Holiday Island, the girls leave their boat at Port of Spain. They meet Bud who takes them to Holiday Island. Barry and Steve are cordial but their greeting lacks warmth. Mona wishes she had not come. Barry does not ask for explanations and she cannot make them.

Affairs remain thus for several days. Mona, worried, decides to return home. One night when she is restless she goes to the beach and finds Barry there. He tells her he loves her but when she asks her to marry him Mona refuses. She feels she must first find a way to give him a share of his uncle's fortune. They quarrel.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLV

THE next morning Mona decided to remain in her room. There were cables to send. For of course now she would have to go home.

Josie, arriving with fruit and coffee at eight as usual, found the girls seated on Mona's bed, engaged in serious conversation.

"You told him, no?" Lottie said curiously, "and you meant it?"

"I mean it now, yes! But not for always. That is unless Barry insists on regarding this as final. I can't relinquish that money, Lottie, until I find some way to give some of it to him. Only his rightful share. It's more his than mine. You can see that!"

"You might sell the Empress," considered Lottie slowly. "Steve said something yesterday about the Maharajah of Bhopal attempting to buy the diamond from him after it had been sold. Maybe the old Maharajah still wants it. That would set things straight, wouldn't it? Until the Empress appeared in Steve's shovel he and Barry owned everything fifty-fifty. That's the way I understand it. Sell the Empress, Mona, and hand Barry the cash. That would settle everything!"

"Do you think he'd take it?"

"Victor! The Maharajah?" Lottie's forehead crinkled. "He wanted it as a wedding gift for his last wife, Steve said. Well, maybe he can use it for his next wife!"

"Don't be silly, Lottie. I mean Barry."

"Would Barry take it?" She cocked her head on one side. "That's different, of course. Maybe he would. Or, brightening, 'you could hide it in the mine somewhere and have Barry find it.'"

"In its platinum setting? Fine!" Mona's tone was ironical. "No, there must be another way. I'm cabling Mr. Garretson if I can get anyone to take me to Granada."

"Maybe Bud will. He's expected today with the mail."

"Well, observed Lottie a few moments later, "this is fine!" The girls sat on the edge of the pool, reading their mail. Lottie waved a thick sheaf of blue sheets bearing a ship's emblem at the top. "This is from Dr. Allen! On the Miranda. He posted it at Port of Spain on the down trip. He went back to South America. Awfully interested in those tropical diseases and says he plans to visit the snake farm in Sao Paulo. He's going to bring some serum back to those people we met from Martinique. Celeste's family. The old man was a doctor once—"

Deep in the long letter, her voice trailed off. The absorbed look on her face gave place to one of mysterious amusement. "He still wants to marry me," Lottie announced placidly.

"He could do worse."

"Well, he'll have to, then. By the way, he must be on the home trip now," Lottie shuffled the pages of the voluminous letter. "It's dated two weeks ago. Maybe we can sight the Miranda off Granada?"

"If we get there."

"Any interesting letters, Mona?"

The other girl shook her head.

"Here's one from Mr. Garretson consulting me about some charities to which, he says, John always contributed. That's amusing—asking me! I remember the time I asked him about various payments—"

"You have to sign the checks, don't you?" Lottie asked idly.

Mona nodded. "Oh yes, I sign them. Mr. Garretson simply puts me down on the lists for a certain amount. The payments aren't made for a long time—not until I'm home."

"Then you're thinking of going soon?" asked Lottie.

To her surprise, Mona's lips suddenly trembled. "I can't stay here very well now, can I?"

"No, I suppose not."

"It's interesting about Dr. Allen," Mona said, as if to turn the subject. "He's a nice chap."

Bud could not take them today to Granada, he told them at breakfast, but possibly tomorrow. He would have to run over in a day or two for more workmen.

"Is the airport progressing?" Lottie asked.

"Yes. It would come faster though if Steve and Barry would pay attention to the work and let hunting go for a while."

"We're hunting in the high bush," announced Steve, who had just turned up for breakfast, bronzed as an Indian. He grinned at Barry.

"Can you girls ride?" Barry asked. "We'll take you—"

But Lottie declined the invitation for both of them. Mona, her eyes on her plate, said nothing. Barry would be absent all afternoon. She would have time to plan and pack. Perhaps they could be ready to board the Miranda at Granada.

Carefully brushed and dressed, her bronze hair gleaming in even, meticulous waves, Mona descended to the terrace at the tea hour. To her surprise she found Lottie there before her, stretched out in a canvas chair, her feet, encased in soft sandals, propped on another chair in front of her.

When she saw Mona she relinquished the extra chair and stood up yawning. "I had a swim," Lottie said, indicating the swimming suit beneath a soft silk wrap. "I stopped here for a minute to enjoy the view. Will you wait for your tea? I'll not be a second. We're alone, aren't we?"

"I suppose so. Miss Gracie said she sent the boys a thermos bottle and sandwiches."

"It's funny about this tea habit," Lottie went on. "It's catching. I don't think I'll be able to get along without it after I get home."

"She wants to say something else," thought Mona, "and she doesn't quite know how. It's about Steve, I suppose."

"Are you coming back soon?" she called after Lottie's retreating figure.

"Oh, yes."

Lottie returned in an amazingly short time, smooth of hair, dressed in baby blue and looking more than ever like a blonde angel. The girls reclined in their deck chairs. The fragrant honey-suckle sweetening the breeze from across the bay. The little speedboat in which Bud had arrived swung in the harbor. From the kitchen they could hear Miss Gracie's lilted voice suggesting guava paste for tea. Josie, squeezing lemons, was singingly happily.

"We'll be alone," remarked Lottie unexpectedly.

"It looks that way. Yes."

As if in answer to her query, there was a shout beneath the hill. Native boys, moving faster than the girls had even seen them, came streaming out of the green tunnel of trees, running and shouting. The car, moving carefully under Bud's guidance, following.

Barry was in the back seat bending over someone, or something. Steve! Where was Steve?

"What is it, Mona?" Lottie stammered. She rose and ran to the edge of the terrace. "What can have happened? Where is Steve?"

The boys, running across the doorway. One of them shouted for Miss Gracie who came hastily with Josie, Florence and Maria close behind.

The girls could hear a sharp order from Barry. Mona put her arm about Lottie. Barry was safe! Barry was safe!

"There, there, dear," Mona began as Lottie started forward with a cry.

"What has happened?" she cried. The boy came toward them, his eyes round in alarm. "Boss, he hurt very bad, Meestress! Very bad!"

"Boss Steve?"

"Boss Steve, Meestress! Very, very bad."

The car had reached the gate now and Sam ran back again to meet it. The natives already were wailing with that monotonous note of despair they reserved for irrevocable misfortune.

"What happened?" asked Lottie, straggling from Mona's embrace. "How is Steve hurt? Did he fall? Was he shot accidentally?"

"Oh no, Meestress! Boss Steve hurt by fer-de-lance. The fer-de-lance!"

R. AND S. SHOES won their third straight game in the industrial league last night although forced to the limit and getting away with only a 22 and 18 decision. The Groth Cleaners were the losers. In the other game last night the Pure Milks dumped the Rechners Cleaners by a score of 37 and 19.

With the Groths battling hard to topple the Shoes, the latter managed to score six points to one for the Cleaners in the opening period. The Shoes scored another six points in the second quarter but the Groths counted seven and the half ended 12 and 8 for the Shoes. Only two points separated the teams at the end of the third quarter when the score was 15 and 13. The Shoes then managed to win 22 and 18 in the last quarter.

Rechner Cleaners and Pure Milks staged a ding dong battle until the third and fourth quarters when the Milks pulled in front and coasted to a win as the Cleaners were forced to perform with four players. The count at the end of the first quarter was four all but the Cleaners led 10 and 9 at the half.

In the third period the Milks came from behind with a 16 and 11 count. During the period Weibes went out on four personals and the Cleaners were forced to finish with four men.

Chief Miller on Point Fight Card

Will Meet Negro Boxer; Program Scheduled For Jan. 2

Stevens Point—Chief Miller, Neenah Indian, has been substituted for Paeky Licker, Sheldon, as opponent for Ted Coleman, Stevens Point Negro, on the athletic club New Year's card to be held at a Milwaukee club to fight on Monday afternoon, Jan. 2.

Miller was originally sought as the Point Negro's opponent, but attempts to sign him were unsuccessful until he was approached a second time. Licker broke a hand in training and was forced to withdraw.

Charlie Crocker of Iron Mountain, Mich., who is scheduled to fight Joe Doll of Rock Island, Ill., in one of the eight-round semi-windups, received an offer from a Milwaukee club to fight Prince Saunders on the same day of the fight here, but failed to get a release from his local contract. Irish Kennedy of Stevens Point meets Eddie Burch of Minneapolis in the other eight rounder on the 30-round New Year's card.

The show is scheduled to start at 8 o'clock.

Beloit Five Loses To DePaul Quintet

Chicago—Beloit college's basketball team was crushed by DePaul University last night, 42 to 22, in a game which boosted the winner's record to five straight for the season.

Jim Gorsky, with five field goals and two free throws, led the DePaul attack. Kupke was Beloit's high scorer, with seven points, and he was outstanding defensively.

DePaul led all the way. The score at the half was 18 to 9.

LAJOIE'S STILL BELTING 'EM

One of the most famous second basemen in baseball's history, Nap Lajoie, retired second sacker of the Cleveland Indians, is out to outdo Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Bobby Jones as a golfer. Above you see Nap showing perfect form after a drive on the Lake Worth, Fla., course, where he plays from 18 to 36 holes daily. After his golf game, he spends a few snappy sessions with his wife at a bridge table.

Coaches Name Advisory Group To Rules Board

Mentors Will be Clearing House for New Suggestions

NEW YORK—(AP)—Closely cooperation by the rule makers of football and the coaches, whose business is to see how the rules operate and who sometimes object to them, was in sight today at the National Collegiate Athletic Association, convened with the selection of a chairman of the football rules committee as its principal task.

Walter R. Oakeson of Lehigh, commissioner of the eastern inter-collegiate association, appeared today as the probable successor to the late Edward K. Hall of Dartmouth as chairman with William S. Langford of New York, secretary and acting chairman, as the only other candidate. Oakeson, whose duties call for the selecting of officials for nearly all the important eastern games, was considered in most quarters to be the logical choice because of his active associations with the game.

Langford Won't Accept
Although his name was brought up because of his post as secretary of the committee and his close association with Hall, Langford was not expected to accept the position even if it were offered to him because of his health and his business demands.

It seems certain, however, that either Oakeson or Langford will find the coaches ready to lend a hand in smoothing out any kinks in the rules. They decided yesterday to withdraw any previous demands for a voting representation on the national rules committee and to form instead an advisory rules committee of their own.

This new body, formed at the closing session of the coaches' convention yesterday with Lou Little of Columbia as chairman, has as its purpose the crystallizing of their views and sentiments and forwarding them through their member advisers to the national committee.

The coaches seek to exert more influence. Little explained, but plan no drastic changes in the rules. "This committee," he countered, "will give us a clearing house for suggestions and things we desire to accomplish."

After electing Dan McGugin, Vanderbilt's veteran coach, as president of the association to succeed Dr. Marvin A. Stevens of Yale, the coaches ended their two-day convention last night with their annual dinner, minus the famous feature, the "brown derby" story telling contest.

Pirates Vision Another Great Outfield Trio

Fred Lindstrom, Waner Boys Expected to Join Immortals

BY JOE SNYDER
Associated Press Staff Writer
PITTSBURGH—(AP)—Shadows of Pirate immortals arise across the bow of the weather beaten scow of the Pittsburgh Pirates as pilot George Gibson shapes his "Murderers' row" for the stormy voyage ahead and the booty of a 1933 National league championship. In the silent winter haunts of the Corsairs, the faithful of Panther Hollow dream of the makings of another great outfield to take its place with the swashbuckling heroes whose names grace the yellowed pages of time.

Lindstrom Joins Fold
Lindstrom, a name once feared as an enemy with Bill Terry's New York Giants, joins the fold to give the crew the one robust punch his many followers believe is needed to put it into power in the battle for the National league's fifty-seventh pennant.

Fast, strong and powerful, he will, no doubt, convert in center field, with the Waners' "big poison" and "little poison"—flanking him in right and left when the curtain lifts on another baseball season.

Harking back, Pirate fans are comparing this superb combination with the great outfields of other days. In the hectic baseball era of 1901 and for two years thereafter, the Pirates had the hard-hitting combination of Fred Clarke, one of the greatest in the Corsair hall of fame, Clarence Beaumont and Lefty Davis who alternated in right field with Jimmy Sebring.

They were the potent factors in the Pittsburgh team that played the first world series on record against the Boston Red Sox—a series never officially recognized by baseball. But it paved the way for the institution of the great annual classic of the American game.

Clarke still was with the Pirates of 1909, playing with the incomparable Tommy Leach and Chief Wagoner, who to this day holds the National league record for knocking out triples in a single season.

1922 Trio Was Great
In 1922, Panther Hollow echoed with the names of another great outfield—the fleet Max Carey, Kiki Cuyler and hard hitting Clyde Barnhart. In 1926 came still another—and one of the greatest—set of fielders of all time—Kiki Cuyler, Max Carey and Paul Waner.

It is the path of these immortal Pirates, whom only Fred Waner and Clyde Cuyler are actively covering the outer reaches of the diamond, that the newest aggregation of Buccaneer outfielders will tread in quest of world series fame in 1933.

Hockey Tourney Given to Wausau

State Association President Votes Against Eagle River

FOND DU LAC—(AP)—The annual Wisconsin hockey tournament will be held at Wausau, Jan. 27 and 28, weather permitting. It was announced by Victor Broom, secretary and treasurer of the State Amateur Hockey association, sponsor of the meet.

Selection of the place for the tournament was deferred at the meeting of state hockey officials last month when Wausau and Eagle River were tied in the voting. A. E. Bergman, Janesville, president of the association, cast the deciding vote yesterday.

Bergman withheld his vote pending construction of an indoor rink at Eagle River, but the rink has not been built.

About 20 teams are expected to enter the tourney.

Pitt Tapering Off For Rose Bowl Tilt

TUCSON, ARIZ.—(AP)—Tapering off exercises were scheduled for the three days remaining in which the University of Pittsburgh football squad will be here before heading for Pasadena and the Rose Bowl game next Monday with the University of Southern California.

Coach Jock Sutherland said he believed he will have the squad in perfect physical condition by the time the train pulls out of Tucson. There was much optimism in the Pitt camp today, principally because the squad came through nearly a week of hard scrimmaging without serious injury to any of its members.

Paul Cuba, left tackle, was the only one remaining on the injured list. Team physicians said it was very likely he would be in condition at game time. Cuba hurt his leg Tuesday.

Sutherland believes his team has the psychological advantage. Pitt rates as the underdog, principally because of the overwhelming 47 to 14 defeat suffered at the hands of the Trojans in the Rose Bowl in 1930.

Lon Warneke Outshines National League Hurlers

NEW YORK, (AP)—Lonnie Warneke, a tall, lanky youngster from Arkansas who has plenty of "whip" in his right arm, has stepped out to break what was becoming a monopoly of the veteran pitchers of the National league.

Warneke, pitching his first full season in big league baseball, made himself a double champion and gathered in a few other odds and ends in the victory line during the 1932 season, the complete hurling records, released today, reveal.

He outshone the oldsters in effectiveness, allowing only 2.37 earned runs per nine inning game. He won 22, more games than any other pitcher in the league, having only six defeats charged against him.

Tony Canzoneri Is Picked as the Best of Fighters

Little New Orleans Italian Gets 35 Out of 55 Votes

NEW YORK—(AP)—Fifty-five experts, making their choices in the annual New York Sun poll, today picked Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, for the season straight year as the best fighter for his weight and inches in the world.

Disdaining Max Schmeling, nominal king of the fistie realm because of his choice over-champion Jack Sharkey as the outstanding heavyweight, as well as such a spectacular puncher as Jimmy McLarnin, the welterweight, 35 of the experts voted for Canzoneri while the remaining 20 split their ballots among nine men.

The ten men and the votes they received were:
Tony Canzoneri, lightweight, 35;
Max Schmeling, heavyweight, 31;
Billy Petrolle, lightweight, Mickey Walker, light heavyweight, each 4;
Kid Chocolate, featherweight, and Jimmy McLarnin, welterweight, each 2;
Max Baer, heavyweight, Ray Arizendi, featherweight, Young Corbett, welterweight, and Midget Wolgast, flyweight, each 1.

Last year, when 64 votes were cast, Canzoneri led with 27, with Walker second with 21 and Christopher (Bat) Battalino, then featherweight champion, third with 6.

The highlight of the flashy little Italian's campaign during the past year was his one-sided conquest of Billy Petrolle, in Madison Square Garden, in a match that showed Canzoneri, former boot-polisher on the streets of New Orleans, at the peak of his form. He is a brilliant boxer and a cutting, damaging puncher.

He dropped two decisions during the 1932 campaign, both disputed, and both to Johnny Jadick in Philadelphia. He knocked out Lew Kirsch, Frankie Petrolle and Battling Glizy, and won decisions from Ray Kiser and Harry Dublinski.

Pro Golfers Show At Miami Tomorrow

MIAMI, FLA.—(AP)—The nation's golf stars—most of them at least—today entered final phases of practice for tomorrow's start of the $2,000 Miami open golf tournament at Miami Springs course.

Led by Tommy Armour, defending his victory in the 1931 tournament and with Gene Sarazen, United States and British open champion offering the most serious pre-tourney threat, a record breaking list of professional and amateur entrants was expected by officials to reach 175 by nightfall.

Ask Grid Rules Award Point for Each First Down

Glenn Scobey "Pop" Warner Again Advocates His Pet System

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor
NEW YORK—(AP)—Glenn Scobey (Pop) Warner was not able to complete his migration back to the east in time to augment the football coaches' discussion of the new rules but from Palo Alto the voice of the old master could be heard today in advocacy of one of his pet proposals—a change in the gridiron scoring system to give one point for each first down, in addition to the present method of scoring. He also urged a change in the new "dead-ball" rule.

Warner's views were contained in a letter to Gilmore Dobie of Cornell, who presented the coaches' report on rules at the convention just closed and urged more simplification and more safeguards in the rules, rather than any other changes in the code which he found satisfactory for 1932.

"The public likes a free scoring game," wrote Warner, who soon will transfer his work-bench from Stanford to Temple. "Baseball men recognized this when they began to use a livelier ball. The change (I suggest for football) would make the games less common and would make the best team more likely to win. It would provide many more thrills—look at the cheers that go up now when the stakes are moved forward."

"The whole idea of the game would be to advance the ball and by scoring a point for each first down it would make it advisable to take more chances on third and fourth downs, instead of always punting. I have advocated this change before and some have said, 'Oh yes, Warner wants to score first down because he gains all his ground in the middle of the field. But I have no selfish motive in advocating this change. I firmly believe it would help that game and we all know the game needs help right now.'"

Also Are Exceptions
"It would be advisable to except first downs resulting from a penalty of more than five yards and not count a first down made inside the opponents' five-yard line, if a touchdown was scored on the next series of downs. This would prevent purposely downing the ball, say six inches from the goal line, on a long run."

"I also believe, as I did before the rule was made, that there was no need for the present dead-ball rule. I still think that a rule saying 'no defensive player shall let his knee or knees come in contact with the ball carrier' with a fifteen yard penalty, would absolutely stop kneeling and do it without taking so much away from offensive football."

"If the present rule is left in I think it could be changed so that a ball-carrier who hit the ground before reaching the goal line and slid over the line should be given the touchdown, because there can be no object in his crawling after he is over the goal-line and no object in a defensive player falling on him. A rule against kneeling, not leaving it up to the officials whether it was intentional or not, would be better."

Numerous 1 to 3 Point Advances are Registered—Trading Best in Month

(Copyright, 1932, Standard Statistics Co.)
Today's market was a most unusual one. It was the second successive day in which traders had made aggressive bullish efforts, but in the previous session, the advance was largely based in a late selling flurry. Issues up to 3 points included Allied Chemical, American Electric, Case, and Union Pacific, while a fair assortment of shares advanced about 1 to 2 points, including American Can, Sante Fe, New York Central, U. S. Steel common and preferred, Socovay, Vacuum, Air Reduction and others. General Motors, a soft spot yesterday, stiffened and closed a fraction higher. Coca-Cola was under pressure for a time, but recovered to close about unchanged. Federal fiscal matters again attracted considerable attention in the financial district, where a balanced budget is widely regarded as essential to restoration of complete financial confidence, particularly in view of the large portion of banking assets now in U. S. government securities. Efforts of Democratic leaders in congress to economies after the war were viewed hopefully. While the general manufacturers sale tax has had strong supporters in Wall-st, this support has been on the belief that adequate economies could not be accomplished. The weekly statement of the Bank of England disclosed that the proportion of its reserves to liabilities had fallen to the extremely low level of 10.5 per cent. A return of funds to the banks after the turn of the year should considerably improve the ratio, but the bank's position indicated that stabilization of sterling was a considerable distance away. Sterling stabilization is regarded as urgent in many quarters in Wall-st.

List Shows Tendency to Rally Despite Late Tax Selling

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
(Associated Press Financial Writer)
New York—(P)—Although belated tax selling made for occasional unsettlement in the curb market today, prices generally displayed a firm undertone and the list was rather disposed to rally. Offerings for the purpose of establishing tax losses were still numerous, since this was the last day such transactions could be made in the "regular way"; tomorrow and Saturday they must be for cash. Many transfers of odd size were effected, indicating this sort of selling. Trading was over a broad list of issues. Utilities commanded most attention. This group looked rather firm, although there was isolated soft spots. American Light and Traction, on which a 50 cent dividend had been declared against previously payments of 62 cents, continued to hold steady. The reduction apparently having been discounted. Electric Bond and Share sold in the vicinity of yesterday's high and American Gas established itself above 30. Associated Gas "A" was another firm stock. Industrials and specialty favorites were somewhat dull. Great Atlantic and Pacific, Swift and Co., American Cyanamid "B", Glen Alden Coal and Newmont Mining ruled around the previous close. In oils, Indiana standard was very quiet. Kentucky eased slightly and figured in one or two blocks of fairly large size. Gulf was steady.

Supply in Excess of Early Estimates—Trade Slow In Early Hours

Chicago—(P)—A weak undertone prevailed the hog market again today despite efforts of sellers to bolster values in anticipation of a broader wholesale outlet. The supply, 30,000, overran advance estimates, and included another liberal contingent of 14,000 forwarded direct to packers. Hardly a load of swine went to the scales during the first hour, but later trade picked up momentum slowly at price levels ranging from steady to a time lower. Light hogs sold at the full decline. Outside demand had no pressure behind it, but some inquiry developed from eastern sources for the 140-160 lb. selections at $3.10 @ 15, the latter being the top. The fresh supply was supplemented by about 4,000 state hogs carried over from yesterday.

Around the market circle, receipts were much heavier than last Thursday, but about on a par with yesterday. Prices were mixed, Kansas City and Omaha quoting strong to a dime higher, Indianapolis and East St. Louis steady with Cincinnati and Peoria 5 to 10 cents lower. Cattle trade was at a standstill for a time, but later showed a little more life. Prices were generally steady. Heavy beef was in light supply moving readily. Curtailed eastern demand for lambs deprived the sheep market of its driving force and trade languished. A few sales were reported at 25 cents below yesterday with only choice stuff still clinging around the $6 line.

Bullish Reports From Nebraska and Kansas Help Boister Values

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN
(Associated Press Market Editor)
Chicago—(P)—Bullish aspects of Nebraska and Kansas official reports led to late rallies in wheat values today. Nebraska winter wheat condition was placed as low as 33.3 per cent in the western part of the state. No rain of consequence was reported in the western third of Kansas. Wheat closed firm, 1 off to 1 up compared with yesterday's finish, Dec. 22. May 44 1/2; corn at 4 1/2 advance; Dec. 22; May 26 1/2; oats unchanged to 1 higher, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 2 cents.

Corn was somewhat firmer overnight more to lack of selling pressure than to aggressive buying. Spreaders bought May and sold July at 1 1/2 difference. Country offerings were small. Eastern demand was slow. Reports of possible damage to the new Argentine corn crop had a little effect. A steady factor emphasized that the Liverpool market virtually had failed to reflect yesterday's price upturn here and that British exchange rates had fallen. Argentine advances told of favorable weather for harvesting and said wheat receipts were increasing. It was added, however, that all wheat in the province of Buenos Aires, an important producing area, was light weight.

A steady factor was persistent drought in domestic winter corn territory southwest. Some unofficial authorities said moisture now would be of little benefit. Traders continued also to give attention to the fact that buyers were able to obtain May and July wheat at present without a carrying charge. Dearth of rural offerings gave relatively firmness to corn and oats. Provisions were easy, affected by downturns in hogs.

Grain Notes

Chicago—A number of Chicago and western grain men said today they believe strengthening influences are slowly crystallizing in grain markets of the world. Should prices take an upward turn of any pronounced duration, they look for a general revival of speculation in all commodities and a general appreciation in values. Declines in prices of grain futures lately have been finding better support and quotation on the breaks is less drastic.

Broomhall reported that large arrivals of wheat in Great Britain last week went rapidly into consuming channels so that stocks there have not increased.

George E. Saunders of Abbott, Hoppin and Co. says: "The moment congress is known to have definitely dropped the allotment plan, I look for a rapid upturn in wheat prices. And, I think the end is now close by. Congress has been studying farm control long enough to know it can't work and that the slave-like attitude of the Russian peasant does not exist on American farms. A very strong cash situation awaits the turn in speculative sentiment, and a very bad new crop outlook and unfavorable crop prospects in Europe and Russia will help."

Considerable research in the records would be necessary to discover a period when the receipts of grain at Chicago were as small as they were yesterday. Only 24 cars arrived, of which 16 were corn, 3 wheat, four oats, and one barley.

Corn is said to be gaining friends, especially among large local operators. There is no pressure of the cash grain and prices are so low that no material decline is expected.
